If left treatment, sexually transmitted infections (stas), often called sexually transmitted diseases (STDs), can cause severe health problems. These include: The Estimates from the Centers for Control and Prevention of Diseasecontrol and Prevention of The Infurtalaticansarbalandanisargan Damayayakkoorang (CDC), about 20,000,000 new stocks are found every year in the United States. Unfortunately, many people don't get immediate treatment for stas. Many stas have any symptoms or very non-specific symptoms, which can make them difficult to feel. The cnick around the stos is also less than testing some people. But testing is the only way to make sure you have an STI. Talk to your doctor if you should be tested for any stas. There are a large number of different stocks. To learn which should be tested for you, talk to your doctor. They can encourage you to test for one or more of the following: your doctor will probably not offer you a test for the herpes unless you have a known exhibition or ask for tests. Ask your doctorDon't if your doctor will automatically check for all your stocks in your annual physical or sexual health check- up. Many doctors do not test patients for regular stas. StI testing is important to ask your doctor. Ask what examination they intend to do and do so. There is nothing to be ashamed about your sexual health care. If you are concerned about a particular infection or symptoms, talk to your doctor about it. The more honest you are, you may get better treatment. If you are pregnant, it is important to get this screening, as the stos may affect the gin. Your doctor should have a screen for the stos, among other things, on his first initial visit. If you have been forced to have intercourse, you should also be tested, or any type of sexual activity. If you have experienced sexual assault or were forced into a sexual activity, you should take care of the trained health provider. Organizations like Taherapa, Abuse & The Honest National Network (Raynan) offer support for survivors of rape or sexual assault. You can call Reynan's 24/7 National Sexual Assault Hotline at 800-656-4673, anonymously, for confidential help. Also discuss important factors to share your sexual risk factors with your doctor. In particular, if you engage in sexual lying in the process, you should always tell them. Some of the active stas cannot be detected using the standard STI test. Your doctor may recommend advising an axle papa on screen for precanshrvos or cancer cells, which are linked to the human tumor hallium virus (HPV).
